4. Next Generation Faregate update

Wendy Wheeler presented on the item, “Next Generation Faregate update.” Sagar Shah, BART Staff was present to answer questions.

Wendy Wheeler shared that West Oakland BART Station will be the pilot station for the new generation faregates. She stated the new generation faregates will be double panel doors and mentioned the pilot faregates does include Accessible Faregates (AGF). She mentioned new generation faregates may not be the final design.

She went over the West Oakland Prototype gates: they are about seven (7) feet tall, there are like bird spikes on top of the faregates. She mentioned there are three different types of doors which are about six (6) feet tall. Wendy Wheeler stated the three different types of doors have not been decided and want to hear from the public which prototype doors works best or does not work.

She mentioned STraffic has worked extensively with Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) communities and incorporated learning into the faregate designs:

- Equipped with top and side-mounted readers
- Sensor technology for safe access of people and service animals
- Aisle lighting, massaging, and color-coding options

She shared different displayed messages when entering or exiting BART stations to improve customer experience:

- Tap again
- Add fare
- See agent
- Do not enter
- Exit here
- Maintenance
- Card accepted

She went over faregate audio messaging:

- Used to convey faregate messages for blind/low vision passengers
- Audible tones (error, successful entry...)
 - will remain the same during initial rollout
- New faregates will have improved sounds (BART staff will update BATF for input in the future during systemwide rollout)

She went over faregate sensors. Wendy Wheeler mentioned there are sixteen (16) sensors in the faregate and will detect and determine movement of passengers (authorized and unauthorized) between the free and paid areas.

She mentioned the overhead cameras are located in the middle of the new generation faregates and will be able to detect (advanced sensor technology):

- Piggybacking
- Bicycles
- Luggage
- Wheelchairs (one in wheelchair and other pushing wheelchair)
- Tailgating
- No facial recognition

Wendy Wheeler went over the next generation initial deployment timeline, which is subject to change:

- Year 2023 – Issued notice to proceed, project progress update to BART Board of Directors, visit to STraffic in Korea and Virginia, install prototype at West Oakland BART Station
- Year 2024 – Door style decision, begin and complete deployment of first eight (8) stations, begin deployment of remaining stations
- Year 2025 – Districtwide replacement complete

Roland Wong asked how high is the reader where you tap your Clipper Card with the new prototype faregates and where will the side sensor be to process the Clipper Card. Wendy Wheeler mentioned with the prototype faregate, there are no side sensor to process the Clipper Card and mentioned staff will look into what is the height to tap your Clipper Card.

Roland Wong asked if the sounds of the beeps will be the same as the current faregates. Wendy Wheeler stated the beep sounds will remain the same but can change at a later date.

Members expressed the desire to visit the West Oakland BART Station to test the prototype faregates and give feedback.

Clarence Fischer asked if the new Accessible Faregate (AFG) doors will be bi-directional and Wendy Wheeler confirmed that the faregates will be bi-directional.

Clarence Fischer asked if the new faregate prototype will be able to take Clipper Cards and BART paper tickets and Wendy Wheeler mentioned faregates will only process with Clipper Cards. She added that as of November 30, 2023, all faregates will no longer able to process BART paper tickets. Clarence Fischer asked if there be a public announcement that magstripe tickets will not be accepted at faregates as of November 30, 2023.

Randall Glock asked if passengers will be able to see the balance with the new generation faregate. Wendy Wheeler mentioned that the new generation faregates will not display the balance amount and stated BART does not control the display of balance and Clipper Card company controls this.

Danny Kodmur confirmed that the double-decker faregates, like the ones at Richmond BART Station, will be replaced with the new generation faregates and Wendy Wheeler confirmed this will happen.

Annie Koruga expressed the desire to keep the amount of the Clipper Card on the display when entering and exiting stations. They think it is important to continue to show the balance with the new generation faregate.

Annie Koruga said with the new generation faregates, they hope fare evasion will be cut back dramatically, but expressed that riders may get injured while trying to fare evade. Wendy Wheeler mentioned the number one goal is safety.

5. Introduction to BART Police Department Progressive Policing and Community Engagement Bureau

Supervisor Armando Sandoval introduced the item, BART Police Department Progressive Policing and Community Engagement. He mentioned safety is BART's priority and stated voices from riders like the BATF is why BART Police Department (BDP) created the new Progressive Policy and Community Engagement Bureau.

He went over the different services and programs that BART Police Department (BPD) provides:

- Transit Ambassadors – Provide presence and visibility on trains and at stations. They are equipped with masks, Narcan (to respond to drug overdoses), and a police radio
 - Ten (10) Ambassadors
 - Work seven (7) days a week
 - Work in teams of two
- Crisis Intervention Specialists (CIS) – Background in social work and assess people experiencing mental health and other kinds of crisis
 - Available Mondays through Fridays
 - Three different shifts
 - Provide Customer Service
- “If you see something, say something” – Download the BART Watch app use to discreetly report any concerning situation
 - Text BPD Dispatch
 - Call BPD by phone
 - Use the train intercom to speak with the train operator
 - Use white emergency phone in the station
 - Speak to any uniformed BART staff

Supervisor Armando Sandoval mentioned Transit Ambassadors covers all five (5) counties and all fifty (50) BART Stations. They provide more attention at some stations than other stations. Transit Ambassadors do wear uniforms.

Daveed Mandell expressed concerns in finding Transit Ambassadors within the BART stations or reaching out to a Crisis Intervention Specialist (CIS). He stated he is blind and would like a better way to reach out to people.

Clarence Fischer mentioned in the past there was more presence of BART Police Officers walking the premises, especially on the trains and now there are not as much presence of police and would like to see this happen again.

Emily Witkin mentioned that the Crisis Intervention Specialist (CIS) should be part of the BART Police App.

Annie Koruga was curious what training Crisis Intervention Specialists (CIS) and Transit Ambassadors undergo. Supervisor Armando Sandoval stated that during their tenure, CIS and Transit Ambassadors receive comprehensive and intense training. Annie Koruga would like to see CIS be more available, especially on weekends.

Annie Koruga noticed that occasionally BART Safety Personnel stroll through the station, particularly checking passenger fare media to make sure there are no fare evaders, which can be abrasive. They would want to see more effective means of connecting with riders. Supervisor Armando Sandoval agreed with Annie Koruga and he stated everyone needs to be treated with respect.

Randall Glock mentioned a few years ago, BATF members worked and put together a quick reference for the BART Police Department the General Disabilities Awareness (GDA). He asked whether GDA should be revisited for review and/or to update.

3.a. Names and purposes of boards, commissions, or task forces you currently serve on or have served on and its relevancy to serving on BART's Task Force (BATF). Please indicate dates of service and the positions you held, if any:

I was on the consumer advisory committee for East Bay Paratransit for several years in the late 90s or early 2000s

3.b. Why do you want to serve on and what skills do you bring to the BART Accessibility Task Force (BATF):

I listen to riders and staff when they talk about challenges they face using the system or dealing with customers. I know my own disability related access and mobility needs, but I also recognize that other people have needs which might be very different from mine and might even conflict with mine. To me, balancing conflicting needs is both usual and important. It's not something I'm afraid of.

3.c. How would your membership assist in establishing communication with the disability community:

I've been part of the disability community in the East Bay for over 35 years. I know many people, but I'm also always learning and recognizing gaps in the my awareness. I would look forward to helping make the system, more accessible and more responsive.
